DAILY NEVADA STATE JOURNAL

C. C. Powning Editor & Proprietor

FRIDAY.....AUGUST 26, 1887.

FOR PRESIDENT IN 1888,

JAMES G. BLAINE,
OF MAINE.

Subject to the decision of the Republican National Convention.

"We always have the American flag above us and not below us."—James G. Blaine.

A FORMIDABLE INDICTMENT.

The San Francisco Chronicle says the Republicans of the State of Virginia have formulated the best and most forcible presentation of the case of the people of the United States against the Democratic party which has yet appeared, and it is especially strong because it is literally and exactly true. There is no attempt at fierce denunciation of that party or its leader, no florid rhetoric or glowing phrases, nothing to stir up any excitement or create any fictitious hostility, but a calm, deliberate, well ordered presentation of facts, from which every one can draw his own conclusions; and that but one conclusion can be drawn, namely, the inefficiency of the Democratic party and Cleveland's Administration to govern the country wisely and prudently only shows the absolute impregnability of the position and the value of the facts stated.

Referring to the planks in the platform of the Virginia Democratic Convention endorsing Cleveland and in the next breath demanding the repeal of the internal revenue laws, this address points out that the two things are inconsistent and insincere, as it is known that the President was opposed to such a measure. Secretary Manning squarely opposed any reduction of taxes imposed on tobacco, fruit distillation and whisky, and President Cleveland approved the views and recommendations of his Secretary.

"That Cleveland's Administration is a bitter disappointment to the managers of the Democratic party of Virginia," says the address, "is attested by loud and deep complaints. It may be that the Democratic managers sincerely wish the repeal of the internal revenue system, but when they declare for the repeal of the system as part of the Democratic faith they are guilty of efforts to deceive the people. That system is held by the Democratic party as a hostage to compel the overthrow of the Republican policy of protection of American labor and industries. . . . The Democratic majority of the Forty-ninth Congress, speaking in accordance with the views of President Cleveland, has given an unmistakable response on behalf of the Democratic party."

The declaration just quoted that internal revenue is held as a hostage to compel the overthrow of the Republican policy of protection, is deserving of consideration. The suggestion is a novel one, but the more it is weighed, the more probable does the solution appear. It has been a constant source of wonder what reason the Democratic party could have for violating its most solemn pledges to do away with the war taxes, which the Democratic National Convention stigmatized as useless, onerous and unjust; but, viewed in the light of this declaration, it becomes entirely clear. The Democratic leaders knew that the sentiment of the nation is strongly in favor of protection; that no open attack on that principle can bring about but disaster to assailants; and so they propose to attack it covertly by assenting to a seeming compromise and giving up internal revenue in exchange for reduced import duties. Such scheme would explain many Democratic maneuvers which would otherwise be inexplicable.

But the address—a full summary of which was published in the Chronicle of Tuesday—is its own best comment. It should be read by all who are indulging in the fond though ignorant delusion that the Democratic Administration is doing well for the country, and especially by those who, like George William Curtis, are Cleveland's worshippers, but whose idolatry rests on very slight foundations. A plain presentation of facts may remove the film from their eyes and show them that their idol is not worthy of their admiration.

The newspaper war seems to be over. The JOURNAL did not provoke it. It has no inclination for such distasteful warfare, but it never fails to respond to an attack, and never quits a fight. It has no ill-feeling toward the Gazette. It wishes it well. It is a good newspaper and deserves to be liberally patronized, and if it gets to be as big as the New York Herald the JOURNAL will wage along like the New York World and some day equal the London News.

The area of Elko county is greater than that of Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island and Delaware combined.

GOVERNOR STEVENSON INTERVIEWED.

HIS VIEWS ON THE NEXT NATIONAL ELECTION—NEVADA'S PROSPERITY—HER AGRICULTURE AND MINES.

The following interview appeared in the Los Angeles Tribune of the 13th inst:

Governor C. C. Stevenson, of Nevada, is in the city, looking after his large interests in Southern California. A reporter for the Tribune found him last evening in conversation with Mr. William Hardy of San Francisco. Governor Stevenson is a man in the prime of life, of fine presence, and distinguished bearing. He is the present Governor of Nevada. He greeted the reporter with cordiality, and remarked that his friend, Mr. J. W. Maddrell, who was for years State Printer of Nevada, was one of the proprietors of the Tribune, congratulated the paper upon the fact. The Governor was asked his opinion of the present status of the political field.

"Well," said he, "I am a Blaine man first, last and all the time. There is no question that Blaine will receive the nomination. If the convention were held this month he would be nominated by acclamation. Unless there is some grave chance before next June, Blaine will be the Republican candidate and he will be elected, too, over any man that the Democrats can put up. Nevada's opinions and sentiments are mine also. Yes sir, Blaine is the next President."

"Whom will the Democrats put in nomination?"

"Cleveland of course; but he has no chance whatever. I think the ticket will be Cleveland and Hill. I have no doubt that the matter is already arranged. Hill will let Cleveland have the nomination this time on the condition that he shall have it next. Hill is yet a young man. He can afford to wait."

"How is Nevada getting on? Is there any likelihood that she will adjourn undischarged.

"Not much. Nevada is growing in population and wealth. Why, she is in better condition to-day, financially, than California. We don't owe a dollar, except to our own school fund, and when we want any money we borrow it from the school fund. Our population is much larger than it was in 1880. The new census will show great gains. The figure in '80 was over 60,000. Nevada is a great State. Her agricultural interests are far more important and valuable than her mines. Why, during the past eight months of last year we shipped over a thousand carloads of Potatoes, the finest in the world. No irrigation is used, so the potatoes are dry and mealy, not like the watery ones that you raise. We produce alfalfa such as can be raised nowhere else. Our cattle interests are very extensive. Nearly all the beef that San Francisco consumes comes from Nevada. Our State land is rapidly being bought. It sells from $1.25 to $2.50 an acre."

"I believe Governor, that you were the first one to successfully work low grade ores. Is that so?"

"Yes, I believe I was. Some time ago, when the mining furore was upon us, the men that were working the mines had an idea that the deeper one got the richer the ore was. Thus it came about that the surface workings were entirely neglected. I thought I saw a chance. So I bought up all the ore in the Empire mine above the 500 level for $45,000 and had five years in which to pay. I worked hard and made money out of it. Then I bought into other mines. One day I was standing at the shaft of the Consolidated Virginia mine, when old John Mackay came up and showed me some of the ore. I didn't think it amounted to much, and refused Mackay's offer to sell some of the stock, though I could have had it for $5. I always regretted that day, for very soon the stock went up to $50. That is one of my mining experiences. The mines I am working now show in the ore about 40 per cent of gold. It costs about $12 a ton to mill it. Yes, I like Los Angeles very much. I suppose that is expected. Good evening."

THE CARSON DISTRICT FAIR.

The Appeal says:

The first annual fair of the Ormsby County Agricultural Association will soon be at hand. Being the first ever held in Carson it will be, in effect, an experiment, which can be made to result in establishing an institution in this county of continually increasing benefit to it. Nothing can so well advertise the resources of any section as a fair, and it is apparent to all that if our first fair is a success, all succeeding ones will attain increased popularity.

To arrange the details of the first of a proposed series of annual fairs is not an easy task, but the matter could not be entrusted to more competent or energetic men than those whom Governor Stevenson has appointed. The Appeal believes that all the citizens of the counties composing District No. 1 recognize the importance of a fair and take an interest in its success. But it lays with the people of this county to manifest a double interest in it and work shoulder to shoulder for its success.

There will doubtless be a number of strangers here during fair time. On their account, in particular, the varied resources of this district should be shown. It will be a revelation to them, for they unfortunately have the idea that this is nothing but a barren waste. Let the farmer exhibit the products of his fertile soil and the rancher his blooded stock and market cattle. Send in your applications for space, even if you can only exhibit a single fat porker or a bushel of wheat or potatoes. If all would do this a fine showing could be made. Let the wagon-maker exhibit a vehicle of his own make, and the jeweler, the milliner, the dressmaker, the tailor, the blacksmith, the shoemaker, the craftsman and the storekeeper in general some of their wares, and what a grand exhibition we could have!

Once more, we say let our people work together as our neighbors in Reno do, and we can have a fair of which we all could be proud.

The Found Treasure Company of Tuscarora has bought the hoisting machinery of the Syndicate at Bodie.

ON THE EVE.

The Sacramento Record-Union correctly remarks:

We are on the eve of one of the greatest migratory movements of this age of immigration. Already there are engagements with excursion agents and the railroads for the transportation of 70,000 people from all parts of the East to California, and new excursions and excursion dates are being constantly arranged. These numbers are independent of those who are daily coming in large numbers in emigrant and palace cars. These during the Fall and Winter will swell the numbers who will visit California the coming season to fully 100,000. The larger part of these will be home-seekers looking for localities for homes. Many will be capitalists who want investments for their money either in lands or city property. Some will be mere tourists or sight-seers attracted here by the fame of our Winterless climate, our semi-tropical productions and our floral wealth in Winter. This great human tide to our shores will grow larger in volume year after year, till the overland roads will be taxed to their utmost capacity in its transportation. Nearly 40,000,000 people of one country's population are living in regions where Winter, with all its rigors, reigns supreme through long months each year. These 40,000 people are being educated up to the belief that Winter is their worst enemy; that it robs them of half of their time for field work, and of a large part of their earnings for the remaining half of the year. From every part of our country come anxious inquiries for homes in a Winterless climate. From the Atlantic slope, where the soils are worn out and the farms, towns and cities are overcrowded; from the great valley of the Mississippi and the basin of the Lakes, where through a long Winter fierce blasts from the Arctic regions sweep over the country; from the great plains and the intra-montane basins, where blizzards in Winter and cyclones in Summer prevail; come the sounds of busy preparations for moving to California.

THE BONANZA KING.

NEW YORK, August 20.—Friends of Bonanza Mackay say that his California affairs will in all probability prevent his early return to New York. A gentleman who is well informed regarding telegraph matters says that Mackay's position in the fight with Gould has been greatly weakened in the past six months. A gentleman, who is an old friend of Mackay's says: "It looks to me as if Mackay would be in the hands of Jay Gould before long, if, indeed, he is not there already."

A memorial to President Cleveland and Congress praying for the establishment of a Board of Arbitration between England and America has been signed by 200 members of Parliament, including many of the most influential. It will receive many more signatures and will be presented at Washington in the middle of October.

FATHER PINE.—This, from the Carson Appeal, will be interesting to many in Reno:

We have before us the picture of perhaps one of the oldest living inhabitants of the United States. It is the portrait of Daniel Pine, formerly Deputy Sheriff of Washoe county and now a guard at the State Prison. The picture was presented by Mr. Pine to the Rev. Geo. R. Davis, Chaplain of the Prison, to whom we are indebted for the pleasure of seeing the portrait.

Father Pine was born in Boston, Mass., on December 21, 1786, being thus close on to the 101st anniversary of his birthday. He has at various times lived in Arlington and Williston, Vermont; Stockholm, New York, and also in Ohio. In 1845 he moved to his present home at Paw Paw Grove, Lee county, Illinois. He is by occupation a farmer. He celebrated his one hundredth birthday last December, on which occasion a large company of neighbors and friends assembled and presented him with one hundred silver dollars, and later in the day eighteen silver dollars more. He sat for the picture mentioned on April 1st of this year, at which time he was hale and hearty, and his mental faculties well preserved, and he seemed strong and vigorous enough to reach another birthday.

May God spare Father Pine for many more years.

A GOOD RULE.—In the printed regulations, and rules for the government of employees on the C. P. Road, the following clause appears:

Great care must be taken to prevent killing live stock. Bring the train to a full stop if necessary. Should any be killed or struck, the engineers must report in writing, on blanks furnished for that purpose, to Division or Assistant Superintendent, giving number of Engine or engines, number of Train, names of Conductor and Fireman, and all other information that may be useful. If stock is killed when it is apparent that it might have been avoided, the value of the stock so killed will be deducted from the Engineer's pay.
